

CULINARY TOUR (DAY SHIFT)

PERU: LIMA

Details

The gastronomic tour of Lima begins in a small artisan coffee roasting in the colonial and bohemian district of Barranco. Every day they choose the ideal beans to offer the best Peruvian organic coffee in the city. You will then visit a traditional market to taste local fruits, learn about other ingredients and learn about their influence on the evolution of world cuisine. The next stop is a nice cebichería in the district of Miraflores. Here you will have the opportunity to prepare a pisco sour with a professional bartender and learn the secrets of perfect ceviche when preparing the dish with the head chef. At the last stop a gourmet Peruvian lunch awaits you in a restaurant considered as an essential stop on your trip to Lima. Next to an archaeological complex of pre-Inca ruins will end the day with millennial dishes and desserts with a modern touch.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Can they accommodate food allergies and special diets?

Yes, vegetarians, vegans, allergy clients and customers who observe lactose-free, gluten-free and other dietary restrictions are welcome. For teetotallers we also provide delicious local non-alcoholic options. We only ask to be advised when booking so that we can coordinate the alternative menus with the restaurants included in our gastronomic route.

Is breakfast recommended before the tour?

We recommend a light breakfast before the tour. We pick them up between 9:00 and 9:30 AM and serve the first tastings around 10:00 AM. Then we don't stop tasting dishes until we finish the experience around 2:30 PM so make sure to bring a good appetite to enjoy the variety of flavors and fusions throughout the day.

WHAT TO BRING

Usually the tours are casual and although we do not spend much time walking, it is recommended to be comfortable as there are times of the day when we pass through cobble streets while exploring the city. Some of the restaurants are more elegant and therefore if you can avoid sneakers is better, but if not possible it is not a requirement. The dress code would be something like elegant sport, however, the most important thing is that they are comfortable.
