Details

"Within the great Titicaca lake, there are villages of supportive men and women who share their culture and ancestral traditions. The traveler has the feeling of having taken a leap in time, to relive a piece of the great history of the children of the Sun. These natives are great sailors and masters of weaving who preserve their wisdom in the designs and decoration of their clothing and in their traditions. The island is also of great landscape value due to its location in the immensity of the lake.

This trip is very popular for the opportunity to interact with the natives who still maintain their innocence of mind and heart, due to their very simple and quiet lifestyle. Their houses are very simple and cozy, all overlooking the Lake, this combination of culture and nature makes this a charming place"

Day 1. Puno - Uros and Amantani islands

Pick up time at hotel: 7:45 - 8:00 am

The tour begins after the transfer picks you up from your hotel and takes you down to the port where you will be waiting for a boat in order to visit the floating islands of the Uros. It is said that the Uros have inhabited these islands for hundreds of years, the Uros man knew how to extract the reed of the abundant totora and gather it in large quantities in order to form small islands in the manner of platforms.

These millennial inhabitants who despite time still live in the artificial islands of totora, are known as the tribe of water, since they have to build their own Islands periodically, adding new layers of "Totora". Their homes and boats are made of the same material.

Once the visit is over you will depart from the island of the Uros to the natural island of Amantani, there you will observe a beautiful landscape. Here you will also be hosted by a family of the place, and share lunch in the house of the same settler that you will visit. You will visit the islands main paths and the ceremonial center of the Pachatata and Pachamama.

In the afternoon they will have a dinner and lodging in a farmhouse

Day 2. Amantani and Taquile islands-Puno

The next day you will also have a delicious breakfast and you will visit the place a little more, and at about 10:00 am you will leave to visit the natural island of Taquile where you will observe the flora and fauna rise towards the main square of the Island of Taquile, from there you will also have a view towards the wonderful lake.

Taquile is also well-known for its handicrafts, and a craft center is in the main square where artisans offer their products. In the afternoon, approximately at 2:30 p.m., you will descend towards the port to board a boat to return to Puno, arriving at approximately 17:00 p.m.

There, in the port, a transfer unit will be waiting for you to take you to your respective hotel.
